Work 'til 67 before you get a pension

TONY Blair plans to force us to stay at work until we're at least 67.

The Prime Minister wants to raise the retirement age to deal with the looming pensions cash crisis.

Millions could face a shortfall because we are living longer than in the past.

But the move is sure to cause outcry because the Government has already stitched up a deal with union barons to let public sector staff carry on retiring at 60.

Mr Blair is believed to be unhappy at the union deal, forged by Work and Pensions Secretary Alan Johnson.

Now Tories are furious, too. Shadow Pensions Minister Nigel Waterson said: "Many people look set to work longer."

"But there should be flexibility to take into account the different types of jobs people have and their different life expectancies."

KELLY DIGGING IN OVER CLASS WAR

RUTH Kelly last night insisted Labour's controversial schools shake-up will go ahead, branding critics "just plain wrong".

The Education Secretary promised her proposals would help poor families, not just the middle class.

Ministers want state schools to become independent trusts, free of local authority controls.

But some Labour MPs fear that the Government wants to bring back grammar school-style selection - leading to bright children getting more privileges.

Ms Kelly told a headteachers' conference in London: "Within any change, there will be genuine concerns, and we will listen to them and address them."

She branded critics of the proposals - the biggest shake-up in 50 years - as "misguided", adding: "They are just plain wrong."

Yesterday 95% of Daily Star readers said our MPs are greedy.

TORY golden boy David Cameron faced an astonishing TV quiz last night about Pink Pussies and Slippery Nipples.

He was being grilled by ferocious BBC Newsnight presenter Jeremy Paxman about his links with the drinks industry.

Mr Cameron, 39, was formerly a director of club chain Urbium and its Tiger Tiger bars, which sell the saucily-named cocktails at £8 a jug. Paxman, 55, stumped him with the opening question:

by MACER HALL
Political Editor

"David Cameron, do you know what a Pink Pussy is?"

The MP, hot favourite to beat David Davis in the Tory leadership contest, stuttered: "Erm, I don't think I do."

Jugful

When Paxman then asked: "Do you know what a Slippery Nipple is?" Blushing Mr Cameron replied: "Oh, er, that's a drink."

Sneering Paxman stormed: "How does the bars in which you are a company director selling a jugful of Pink Pussy for less than £8 sit with a commitment to the responsible selling of alcohol?"

He went on: "I mean, a jug full of Pink Pussy at £8. That's responsible, is it? A drink containing white rum, Malibu, strawberry liqueur, grenadine and cream?"

Struggling to retain his cool, Mr Cameron insisted: "I think it is important drinks promotions are responsible."

"This company with which I was associated had a reputation to be a responsible operator."

The pair also clashed over Mr Cameron's refusal to discuss whether he has taken cocaine.

Paxman blasted: "It's come to something in this country when you believe people are ready to put in Downing Street a man who has taken Class A drugs."

Mr Cameron said: "I'm not going to go down this road of answering more questions about this."

Tip-top nipple tipples

HERE'S how you can make your own Pink Pussies and Slippery Nipple cocktails.

For the Pink Pussy you need raspberry liqueur, Irish cream and milk. Mix one shot of liqueur with two shots of Irish cream and six shots of full fat milk.

Pour it all into a cocktail shaker with ice. Shake, strain and pour into a champagne saucer.

For the Slippery Nipple, you will need Irish cream and butter-scotch schnapps. Mix them together in equal amounts then serve in a shot glass.

EYE EYE: Dan as Harry

SPEC-TACULAR

Harry's geeky glasses sell like magic

HARRY POTTER fans with an eye on looking like their hero have sparked a craze for kids' specs.

The boy wizard's geeky owl glasses are flying off opticians' shelves in tens of thousands.

"Harry Potter has managed to make specs cool again and struck a blow for anyone who's ever been teased about it or called four-eyes," said Daniel Radcliffe, 16, who plays the boy wizard. And

by NADINE LINGE

when the new movie, Harry Potter and the Goblet of Fire opens today, the teenager's trademark round glasses are likely to become even more of a fashion hit.

Experts reckon sales will double in the next couple of months as young fans flock to see the action-packed film.

Figures from High Street opticians Specsavers show 60,909 pairs were sold between August and November this year and they expect sales to rise to 135,000 by early January.

Goblet of Fire is set to rake in £25.1million at the box office, making it the biggest Potter hit yet.

Fantasy

Experts predict it will outstrip the £23.9m taken by last year's instalment, Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban.

But it is only expected to have a short run topping the charts. The Lion, The Witch and The Wardrobe – a big-screen adaptation of the CS Lewis fantasy tale – opens in three weeks' time and is a dead cert to overtake Harry and claim the Christmas No.1 position.

● Hunky Robert Pattinson, 19, has been dubbed the new Jude Law after a scene-stealing turn as Harry's tragic school rival Cedric Diggory. Screen International magazine says: "Casting directors are predicting a big future."

I'M A CELEBRITY GOING TO THE
HELLRED-HOT EXIT FOR SHEREE

by PETER DYKE

FORMER Emmerdale babe Sheree Murphy is looking forward to a perfect send-off from footballer husband Harry Kewell – a sizzling sex session.

While Sheree, 30, was jetting out to the I'm A Celeb camp the 27-year-old Liverpool ace was helping his country Australia into the World Cup.

But they'll hook up at a Queensland hotel for a red-hot farewell before the show starts.

"They are very close and this will be the longest they have spent apart for a long time," said a source. "By chance he is in Australia. They are still like young lovers rather than a married couple.

"They want to get together for one last night before Sheree faces the biggest challenge of her life."

Sheree is terrified at the thought of the Bushtucker Trials and admits: "I go nuts if there's even a fly in the kitchen."

She also says she will desperately miss her children Taylor, four, and Ruby, two.

HELL
Jungle 'jail' built to punish stars

I'M A CELEBRITY bosses are set to make life hell for this year's jungle gang.

Unlucky contestants will be sent to an outback "jail" where they will have to cope with primitive conditions.

The unsuspecting stars, including Neighbours babe Kimberley Davies, 32, and antiques expert David Dickinson, 64, may even be left to starve.

Last night a show spokeswoman said: "We warned the celebrities that

EXCLUSIVE

from PETER DYKE in Australia

we were going to shake things up and we have. There are some nasty surprises in store. That's all we can say for now."

The Daily Star uncovered the dastardly plot after we got an exclusive trip into the remote rainforest camp yesterday.

As the stars fly into Australia for their jungle jaunt, they are blissfully unaware of what is lined up for them at Murwillumbah in New South Wales.

Situated near eight jungle beds is a cosy treehouse with two very comfy beds.

Whoever is elected camp leader for the day gets to sleep in the lap of luxury.

But located over a hill across snake-infested surroundings is the "prison".

There is speculation that any celeb who chickens out of a Bushtucker Trial or causes rows will be sent there. There are two hammocks made of rope and the loo is just a bucket.

The hammocks bring the number of beds in the camp to 12, sparking rumours that Cannon, 67, and Ball, 61, may still arrive.

A show source said: "This is going to cause mayhem. On the one hand the celebs can win the chance to live like kings, and on the other they can be treated like inmates of a prison."

Whoever gets the latter had better be tough. It's a very cruel stunt. Hosts Ant and Dec, both 30, may have a new sidekick and the rumour is that it's another koala like Hogan from last year.

ANT'S GIRL IS A SILVA SHINING...

by MARK JEFFERIES
SINGER Antony Costa is only going on I'm a Celebrity because his girlfriend FORCED him to.
The former Blue star, above, is hoping to launch a successful solo career on the back of his jungle exploits.
And his lover, Emmerdale star Adele Silva, 24, told him being on the show would be the best way of getting some advance publicity.
Antony, 24, said: "Adele is the one who said I should do I'm a Celeb and that I'd be silly not to."
"Behind every man is a strong woman and I believe I have that in Adele. When she said I should go in she gave me a whole list of reasons."
"So I might as well do it as I've nothing to lose."
Antony, whose debut solo single Do You Ever Think Of Me? is due out in January, will miss Adele's birthday tomorrow as he prepares for the jungle. But the blonde babe - who plays bed-hopping Kelly Windsor in the ITV1 soap - has managed to get time off from filming to fly out and support him.
Last year, comic Vic Reeves, 46, shocked his wife Nancy Sorrell, 30, when he joined her in the jungle.
Antony is hoping to prove his doubters wrong. He added: "A lot of people think I'm a bit of a dickhead and I want to prove I'm not. This is the time for me to shine."

LOST BAGS: Osmond Jimmy a sad case...

JIMMY OSMOND could be forced to wear fig leaves in the jungle after airline staff lost his luggage.

The former child pop star touched down in Oz yesterday from America, but couldn't find his suitcases.

And now the 42-year-old singer is desperately trying to track down his stuff before he leaves his swish hotel room for the jungle at the weekend.

A source said: "Jimmy is beside himself, because all his luxury items are in those bags and he wants to take some of the stuff into the jungle in his rucksack. 'At this rate he won't have anything in his bag and he is a bit worried about the situation.'"

THE first FBI-style web-site listing Britain's 10 most-wanted criminals was launched yesterday.

And police chiefs were left red-faced when the latest crime-fighting tool crashed in hours after more than 200,000 hits.

Frantic IT engineers had the website - www.mostwanted-uk.org - up and running last night.

But Conservative MP Dominic Grieve, 49, shadow Attorney General, said the collapse was a "severe embarrassment" for the police and the organiser Crimestoppers.

Rewards

The site features a regularly-updated rogues' gallery of the most-wanted suspects, including violent thugs, murderers, terrorists and rapists.

So far 12 police forces have signed up, but Crimestoppers expects it will soon be used by all 43 forces in England and Wales.

The website includes photographs of known suspects, detailed descriptions and rewards of up to £50,000.

It will also be able to show CCTV images of unidentified targets.

Tribunals too Kosi

BIG Brother's Makosi has taken the immigration system for a ride.

She broke her visa conditions by quitting her job as a nurse so she could go on the reality show.

Now she's gained permission to remain in Britain after persuading a tribunal that the programme turned her into a refugee.

Makosi argued her life would be in danger if she returned to her native Zimbabwe.

She says her behaviour on BB, including the wearing of a bikini, would result in her being persecuted.

It's hard to believe that even a tyrant like Zimbabwe's Robert Mugabe would be worked up into a murderous frenzy by Makosi's harmless antics.

In any case, no-one forced her onto the show or arm-twisted her into flashing the flesh.

Makosi is responsible for her own actions and should've taken the consequences.

Our asylum tribunals are clearly a soft touch.

Cameron a pussy prat

DAVID Cameron has had an easy ride on his way to becoming the next Tory leader.

That was until he came up against BBC interrogator Jeremy Paxman last night.

Mr Paxman asked him if he knew what a Pink Pussy or a Slippery Nipple were.

These are cocktails served in the binge-drinking palaces that Mr Cameron has had a business interest in.

The question left the MP looking mixed up, shaken and stirred.

Our Jeremy also taunted Mr Cameron over rumours that he may have taken Class A drugs like cocaine.

What a pity their roles weren't reversed - and the witty, smart, bold Paxman was the man bidding to become Prime Minister.

He would get our vote.

Harry's game

LIVERPOOL winger Harry Kewell has been promised a "sizzling sex session" from wife Sheree Murphy before she starts I'm A Celebrity.

That'll be the first time he's scored since December 4 last year!

SICK ROMEO'S NEW DASH TO HOSPITAL

Blotch 'n Becks

LOOKS like soccer superstar David Beckham has got himself into a spot of bother. The England captain, 30, turned up for a training session in Madrid with an odd-looking scratch injury on his hooter.

No one NOSE if he picked up the bright red blotch during a knock about at work, but he'll have to pull his beanie down a bit more to hide it.

WORRYING TIMES: Mum Victoria was 'frantic' when Romeo was taken ill

by GERARD COUZENS
ROMEO Beckham has been admitted to hospital for the FOURTH time in a new health scare.

Worried parents Posh and Becks rushed their sickly son to a private clinic in Madrid after he developed a high fever.

Doctors diagnosed a bronchitis-like viral infection after performing a series of tests on the three-year-old, and kept him in overnight as a precaution.

He is now off school and resting at the couple's £5million mansion in the Spanish capital.

The latest scare comes less than two months after the youngster was admitted to hospital twice in a week with frightening convulsions. He has now been admitted to hospital four times in just over three months.

Romeo fell ill again just hours after David, 30, lavished flowers and gifts on his wife during a £20,000 night out at London's plush Blakes Hotel.

The trip after she returned from working in Japan was to help her get over the stress of their son's health problems.

Posh, 31, and Becks, 30, rushed him to hospital on Monday evening after flying back to Madrid by private jet.

A source said: "David pampered Victoria rotten last weekend, reserving the best suite at Blakes and filling it with flowers and gifts."

Tests

"But Romeo falling sick again so soon has really knocked them for six."

"Romeo is off school and Victoria has cancelled all her plans to be at his bedside. David is taking turns to look after him."

Romeo spent Monday night at Madrid's Ruber International Clinic.

An insider there said: "Victoria was frantic with worry when she took Romeo in. He had a temperature of 40 degrees."

"Doctors performed a series of blood and urine tests before diagnosing the beginnings of bronchitis."

"Brooklyn and baby Cruz seem much stronger than their brother."

"The decision to keep Romeo in overnight was more of a precaution."

Bidding battle for TV footie

by STEPHEN RIGLEY
TELLY chiefs are poised for a massive mega-bucks scramble after Eurocrats ended Sky's 13-year monopoly of live Premiership football.

New pay-TV operators such as NTL are expected to enter next year's bidding war along with the BBC, ITV and Five.

From 2007 to 2010 there will be six packages, each containing 23 live games per season and featuring stars such as Chelsea's Frank Lampard, 27.

Value

All packages will be of equal quality - so no one can "cherry-pick" the best games, and no one will be able to bid for more than five packages.

Sky is expected to retain the majority of the rights but the sixth could be sold to a terrestrial channel.

Eurocrats said Sky's monopoly was anti-competitive. Euro Competition Commissioner Neelie Kroes said: "Fans will get greater choice and better value."

NINE out of 10 soccer fans don't believe England will win the World Cup next year, according to a new poll for betting firm Cantor Spreadair - but more than half reckon they'll at least reach the semi-finals.

YOB ATTACKED FIREFIGHTERS

SCUM: Ratcliffe, 15

A JUDGE yesterday named and shamed a 15-year-old lout who led a 30-strong gang attack on firefighters. Kieran Ratcliffe and his pals pelted the crew with bricks and bottles as they tried to put out a field blaze started by the boozy yobs. They spat at one fireman and punched him as six of the gang tried to wrestle him to the ground. Another officer had a bottle hurled at his face. Even as the 999 team retreated to their fire engine, they were bombarded with missiles by local thugs in Eccles, Greater Manchester. District Judge Jonathan Finstein allowed Ratcliffe to be named after giving him six months' youth custody. He also got an Asbo after being found guilty at Salford Magistrates' Court of violent disorder. Judge Finstein told him: "What sort of society have we come to when firemen are subject to assaults like this? It is beyond belief."

I found ice axe

TORMENT: Marcus Binns - seen at a vigil for Anthony - told yesterday of the night his cousin was killed with an ice axe

Picture: MERCURY PRESS

Cousin who ran for help tells of horror

THE cousin of murdered Anthony Walker yesterday relived the horror of finding him dying with an ice axe embedded in his skull.

Marcus Binns swallowed hard before telling a hushed court of the terrible sight that met him in a Liverpool park.

"He was in a critical condition," said 18-year-old Marcus. "He was face-up and there was an axe in his head. I started to panic and I called 999."

Tragic black student Anthony, 18, died hours later from the single blow to his head with a 2ft ice pick which wedged itself two inches into his brain.

Afro-haired Marcus told how he had cut through a park with Anthony and his girlfriend to escape a gang of racist thugs shouting abuse.

He then managed to break away and dash for help as the three were ambushed by killer Paul Taylor and his 17-year-old pal Michael Barton, the brother of Manchester City midfielder Joey, 23.

by JOHN MAHONEY

Shortly afterwards he was driven back to the park by a neighbour living nearby and his son.

"I was completely out of breath, in shock, frightened," he told the court. "All three of us got out of the car, walked up and we saw him lying there."

Prosecutor Neil Flewitt earlier told the jury Anthony was hacked to death "for no reason other than the colour of his skin".

Abuse

Yesterday Marcus told Liverpool Crown Court how the deadly attack started with a man wearing a ski mask and hood hurling racial abuse at him and Anthony outside the Huyton Park pub where they were waiting for a bus with Anthony's white girlfriend, Louise Thompson, 18.

"We were waiting at the bus stop when we saw two men come out of the pub," he said. "The first thing one of them said was 'Microphone head' and 'Oi, you, Michael Jackson'."

"I looked around and could see no one else and realised the guy could only be talking to me." Marcus said he felt uneasy and suggested he, Anthony and Louise all moved on to another bus stop. As they walked away they were passed by a green Peugeot 406 without its lights on.

Anthony with an stuck in his head

"The vehicle made him feel 'anxious and wary' because of what had happened outside the pub, he said.

"Anthony suggested walking through McGoldrick Park to head for Huyton village," said Marcus.

"We were walking at a normal pace, but there were just inner feelings that someone was following. I didn't see anything, it was just a feeling.

"There are a lot of trees in the park and it was dark, very dark.

"I turned around fully with my back towards Anthony and his girlfriend and I didn't see anything. So I turned towards the exit and I glimpsed towards my left and I saw a dark, shadowy figure in the bush.

"It crept out of the bush. I've noticed it and I've told them to run.

"We've made a run for it and as I'm running I'm trying to push them in the same direction and I've managed to get ahead of them both. I didn't look back as I was running away but I wasn't aware of anyone running behind me."

Anthony's girlfriend Louise, who wore a pendant bearing his picture, wept in court yesterday as she too recalled the race-hate terror.

"Some lad shouted racist abuse at me," she told the court. "He was shouting at Anthony and Marcus. He just told them to walk. 'Walk, nigger, walk'."

Panic

Once in the park she said around four figures leapt out of bushes towards them.

"I just saw them jump out and when Anthony let go, I just ran. I panicked. I didn't look around. I saw Marcus run, he was ahead but went in a different direction."

She ran to a police station and was taken inside when she told how her boyfriend was being attacked.

The court heard that former pub manager Stanley McLoughlin was also in the Huyton Park as a customer the night Anthony was murdered.

In a statement he said: "I have known Paul Taylor for a number of years. In the past I've had to throw him out of the pub because he had a hunting knife with him.

"The blade was about six to eight inches long and I recall him brandishing it, saying 'Someone's going to get this tonight'."

He also told police he had thrown Taylor out on other occasions because he was carrying a CS gas canister.

But in court yesterday Mr McLoughlin denied making the comments to police.

Racist Taylor, 20, has admitted murdering Anthony this year and faces life in jail when he is sentenced at the end of his cousin Barton's trial.

Jobless Barton, of Huyton, denies murder and conspiracy to cause grievous bodily harm. The prosecution allege he supplied the ice axe.

The trial continues.

BACK-SEAT ACTION: Kate poses for the calendar in the back of a motor – a soft top, of course!

KATE LOOKS BERET NICE

She glams it up with J.Lo

SEXY Kate Moss shows she's still out in front, despite her coke shame, as she poses topless for the 2006 Pirelli calendar. The 31-year-old model feared being dropped from the prestigious assignment after being exposed as a cocaine user, but bosses could not resist her curves.

Kate is pictured wearing only a beret and her trademark pout as she reclines in the back of a car. Pirelli UK chief Julie Naylor said: "There was no chance Kate would be dropped from the calendar. She has always been great for us. Her private life is no concern of ours."

The calendar, famed for its snaps of the world's most beautiful women, is being launched today in Paris and will be sent to 30,000 VIPs – including Prince Andrew, 45. It also features Hollywood diva Jennifer Lopez, 36, recreating a glam Fifties look in a white bikini.

Zoe:
I'm no
dance cheat

by SARA HOWLETT

STRICTLY Come Dancing diva Zoe Ball has rubbished rumours that she cheated by getting extra tuition from a top choreographer to try to win the dancing queen crown.

The twinkling TV presenter denied accusations she had extra lessons from dance tutor Steven Hoggett as well as going to rehearsals with her TV partner, Latin American champ Ian Waite, 35.

Zoe, 34, said: "I've never even heard of the guy - it's absolute nonsense. 'I'm loyal and Ian would never forgive me if I had done that, I'm no cheat. 'I've been practising every day for five or six hours - nine hours on Monday."

Favourites Zoe and Ian went to the seaside this week to tread the boards of Brighton's famous

FAVOURITES: Zoe and Ian

Palace Pier for an al fresco dance session.

Zoe, who lives in Hove, East Sussex, with DJ husband Norman Cook, 42, and four-year-old son Woody, said: "We were practising quick-step in the studio and wanted a bit more room because it needs more running around, so we decided to come outside."

"We're canvassing some voters and having a little dance!"

"We're really enjoying ourselves but there's a long way to go."

"I love everything about this type of dancing. I've never done it before and we have such a laugh."

Bookies reckon Zoe and Ian are in a two-horse race to the top with athlete Colin Jackson, 38.

Zoe and Ian are favourites at 4-5 odds, with Colin and Erin Boag, 30, close behind at 2-1.

The four other contestants are cricketer and housewives' favourite Darren Gough, 35, celebrity chef James Martin, 32, Casualty actor Will Thorp, 27, and BBC News presenter Bill Turnbull 49.

MAN ABOUT TOWN:
Chico's confident enough now to make a play for one of Europe's loveliest pop babes

ABOUT TELLY DAILY STAR

ABOUT TELLY

CHICO: TIME TO DATE ME JAVINE

X FACTOR cheeky chappie Chico Slimani is working his charm on pop babe Javine Hylton.

The former goat herder and stripper – catchphrase “It’s Chico Time” – spied the Eurovision beauty at a gongs bash and just couldn’t take his eyes off her.

It wasn’t long before the pair amazed fellow guests at posh Grosvenor House in London with some dirty dancing.

And, by the end of the night, they were swapping phone numbers.

Sexy 23-year-old Javine was targeted by Chico, 34, at the Children’s Champions awards.

One fellow guest confided: “He was all over her from the first moment he arrived.”

Flirting

“He sat at a table next to her and spent the night flirting. He even followed her to the toilets to speak to her alone.”

“A bit later in the night he managed to get her on the dancefloor when McFly were playing.”

“They were really going for it together and made a nice couple.”

“Even when the ceremony had finished, they carried on chatting and dancing for over an hour.”

Sadly for Chico, Javine was spotted leaving the bash alone.

But a pal of hers said: “She thinks he is really cute and she had an amazing night.”

“She is not sure if she wants to take it any further. We’ll have to wait and see if they hook up again.”

Meanwhile, Chico’s got plenty to keep him busy on the ITV1 show.

Yesterday, he was back in the studios rehearsing for this weekend’s session.

He’s putting extra pressure on himself by singing his own song, Chico Time, which he also hopes to release as a single.

And he’ll face stiff competition from Shayne Ward, 21, and Nicholas Dorsett, 17, who were also at the bash along with X Factor judges Simon Cowell, 46, and Louis Walsh, 53.

But bookies Ladbrokes have given him a boost by slashing his odds to win from 100-1 to 25-1.

And his family are sure he’s got what it takes to go the whole distance.

His elder sister Fabah, 35, said: “We’ve known what a great entertainer he was since he was a child.”

“He’s always the funny one with the great personality and a big heart.” She added: “Everybody is backing him and we are very proud of his success so far. He’s not one of the best singers but he’s the greatest entertainer there.”

“He’s doing great and he’s definitely got the X factor!”

Moroccan Chico, who has lived in West Sussex since he was 14, narrowly escaped eviction at the beginning of the hit series. But his popularity has grown, particularly with the ladies.

A date with the lovely Javine could be the jewel in his crown.

Sugababes stocking up in top style

THOSE sexy Sugababes are looking stocking tops for Christmas after landing a deal as the faces – and legs – of hosiery giant Pretty Polly. Mutya Buena, 20, left, Heidi Range, 23, centre, and Keisha Buchanan, 21, are following in the footsteps of a string of other beauties. Jade Jagger, 34, and Rachel Stevens, 27, are among the gorgeous girls who have modelled for the firm in the past. Mutya said: "We're really excited to be the new faces of Pretty Polly. We're modern women who like to have fun, making the brand a perfect match for us."

PC TOWN HALL DUMPS XMAS

Fury at 'Festive Lights' celebration

CHRISTMAS came under attack yet again yesterday when another barmy council banned it.

Silly burghers in the north London borough of Islington are the latest to spark outrage.

They've ruled that there will be no Christmas lights in the borough's streets this year.

Instead, the decorations will be called "Festive Lights" – to avoid offending people from other religions. Father George Ranahan, of SS Peter and Paul's Catholic Church in Finsbury, blasted the move.

He raged: "This is pathetic. If they take Christ out of Christmas, what have we got left?"

"This is supposed to be a Christian country. It is just one more barmy example of political correctness – and it's absolutely ridiculous."

But Lib Dem Councillor Laura Willoughby, executive member for communities on Islington Council, defended the decision. She said: "They are being called Festive Lights because some people don't recognise Christmas. The lights are there for all our people – however they want to mark the occasion."

Islington Council is to fork out more than £140,000 on the lights. There will also be an "Interfaith Celebration of Light".

Paul Malley, executive member for communities on Islington Council, defended the decision. She said: "They are being called Festive Lights because some people don't recognise Christmas. The lights are there for all our people – however they want to mark the occasion."

POLITICAL CORRECTNESS GONE MAD

PLANS for the tallest Christmas tree in the south of England ended in disaster when 30ft of its branches fell off as it was erected in the centre of Farnborough, Hants. Council staff admitted the 50ft tree was too big to handle.

★ WE have to hand it to Martine McCutcheon for throwing seriously sexy moves on the dance floor at Kinky Mambo, Islington, north London. The sexy 29-year-old was having a whale of a time at the evening called Naked On Safari. A guest said: "She and her girlfriends were chatting to the DJ and requesting records. They were good dancers."

WRECKED PETE PINES FOR KATE

Treemendous thrill for Billie

DOCTOR WHO was tripping the light fantastic last night as new star David Tennant turned on the Christmas display in Cardiff. David, 34, and Billie Piper, who plays Rose Tyler, flicked the switch in a break from filming. And Billie, 23, revealed that sidetrack Rose is attacked by a Christmas tree in the show's festive special. She told us: "That's pretty exciting and scary at the same time."

TROUBLED rocker Pete Doherty was back to his old ways this week — going on a huge bender to ease his heartache over Kate Moss.

The Babysambles frontman poured his heart out to mates at Bar Solo in Camden Town, north London, and admitted he feels like he's "lost a limb" since Kate left.

An onlooker said: "Pete seemed in a hell of a state. He looked really ill and pale and seemed as though he had a terrible cold. He spent all day getting wasted and was joined by a couple of mates."

"They were on a bender too but looked concerned when he wouldn't stop talking about Kate."

Wasted

Doherty, 26, who has battled addictions to crack cocaine and heroin, was overheard saying how much he misses Kate, 31, while she carries out modelling assignments in Barcelona.

Our mole, who watched Doherty deteriorate after arriving at the hip haunt at lunchtime, said: "Pete kept insisting he was there to have a good time but he couldn't stop talking about Kate. The more wasted he got, the more obsessed he became."

"His friends kept telling him it would be all right but he said, 'How can it be when I've lost a part of me? I feel like I've lost a limb'."

Our source said the friends managed to persuade him to leave after five-and-a-half hours only after warning that photographers had been tipped off.

The source explained: "One of Pete's mates said they could continue the party back at his house and told him that he didn't want Kate to see pictures of him like that. 'That's really the only thing they could say to him to get him to leave.'"

Poor old Pete. It brings new meaning to the title of his new album. Perhaps he should rename it Down And Out In Albion...

BENDER: Pete's so sad

HUSH HUSH

WHICH brunette TV presenter stormed out of a recent voice-over session after demanding a limo drop her at home afterwards? The dainty diva in question has a reputation for her bad behaviour and she's just lost out on a major TV job because of it. And to think she earns £15,000 for popping up at charity events...what a disgrace.

GISELE STAYS TASTY

GISELE Bundchen has spoken out against skinny models who don't eat in order to retain their slim look for the catwalk.

The Brazilian beauty, 25, says: "It's important to remember that if you don't put gas in your car, it's going to stop."

"Similarly, if I don't put food in my body, I'm going to die."

"I eat whatever there is to eat because I don't want to faint on the runway." Gisele, whose long-running romance with Leonardo DiCaprio has just ended, reveals her eating habits and beauty secrets in an interview with Entertainment Tonight on Sky One tonight.

And in the meantime, DiCaprio, 31, hasn't wasted much time in his hunt for a new girlfriend.

We hear he's been spotted looking very cosy with 23-year-old Elizabethtown beauty Kirsten Dunst.
